SECONDS OF FUN
an overview from begin to end

Through the morning mist the small hunting party peered through the grass at a herd of aurochs. Silently creeping forward, they chose their prey, and carefully launched their attack. Once more, the tribe would eat, and they carried the future feast home. Later that evening, they sat near a cave and gorged themselves with meat. The story of the hunt was told again and again, to the delight of those who weren't there. An old man had noticed that the charcoal from their fires left marks on the nearby stones, and he took some into the cave behind them. Carefully, he outlined aurochs on the wall that had been their earlier prey. Then, he used some nearby clay to color in the lines and stood back to behold his creation the drawing of an animal!

The simple act of a prehistoric man painting on a cave wall, which took place around 40,000 years ago in Spain, was a declaration that changed the world. It showed that they were not just some bi-pedal animal, they were something special. Man is the only animal that has this imagination, creativity, and spark. No other animal makes "art." We know that this was not a fluke, as it has been demonstrated throughout history; from the Stone Age, to the Classical Age, to the Dark and Middle Ages through the Renaissance, to the present day. We have always had art, and that is what makes us so special.

Art wasn't the only thing humans were good at, of course. Another area of expertise was the evolution of technology, and a main modern development was the internet. This allowed humans to share information, and art, to much larger audiences, which in turn led to more developments and creativity. In August, of 2005, Frank Slegers (known to us as Mr. Monty) brought a site for the world to demonstrate their art called Photoshoptalent.com . This initial site concentrated on chopping so artists could amaze us with their fantasies and imagination. Eventually, a photography section was added and that began to grow as well.

When the photography section grew past infancy, Mr. Monty decided to split the sites. In September of 2008, Pxlshots.com was born. Photographers from across the world now had a home of their own where they too had weekly contests and one vs one challenges. Eventually, Mr. Monty made the decision to recombine, and then expand the sites. In June of 2009, our beloved Pxleyes.com was born. At this stage our site had the Photoshopping and Photography, but also expanded to include 3D and Drawing contests.

Eventually, the 3D and Drawing fell by the wayside due to lack of entries, but Photoshop and Photography remained strong. Hundreds of people have been registered and Pxleyes had contributors from all over the world; from Europe, to Asia, to Australia and New Zealand, to North America and South America. Thousands of entries have shown how far we've come since that first cave painting of an auroch, but, all good things come to an end.

As we know, the final contests at Pxl-eyes are about to conclude, but the memories of this great site won't soon be forgotten. People have found inspiration and education, friends that will last beyond the pages of a website, and even marriage. Pxl-eyes has affected our world, and the world. We're all grateful to Frank and his crew of moderators for the time, resources, and effort he has been putting into the site to keep it up for us this long. Farewell, pxleyers!

For me it's been a short, but rewarding experience here at Pxleyes. To all my new found friends, and to all of you that would've become my friends, I wish a happy, healthy, and creative life.

Be well, and I hope we'll stay in touch, somewhere, somehow!

Victor Spadoni (TorDoni)

Thanks for the good times, Pxleyes. You will be missed by many !!

Back in 2008 i was seeking for a way to express my art & get feed back from others,to share thoughts,ideas & the same passion i have! I was lucky you see,cause i found PXLSHOTS. As a lousy photographer,i had a hard time to even shot a decent photo for a contest.Back then a lot of ppl helped me to learn some basics & improve my skills.

Then in summer 2009 the server crashed & everything was gone...A big disappointment & a feeling of emptiness flood my heart. Then out of no where the site re-appears with a brand new name PXLEYES. What a thrilling emotion that was...All over again,back from the start but my life had a meaning once again!!!

I thought that this masterpiece site would be eternal. Countless hours of composing,creating,shooting,thinking,browsing through the pages of the contests.

A paradise of arts. A meaning in my life. I would had never created all this beautiful photos if it wasn't for PXLEYES. Every idea,every set up was inspired by the contests. I feel my other half is lost...

Competition was hard,we had our arguments but that was the beauty of this site. I learned so much from all of you. Each & every one gave me something,asking nothing in return!

I can write for hours but it will not change a thing. All good things come to an end.

A very,very big THANK YOU to Frank for running the site so smoothly all this time.You will always have my respect for this idea that changed my life for ever.

Friiskiwi,kyricom,adeincyprus,bluefly,Kenjinsan,Lodd,maclu2iaf,MaRkSq UiRrEl,outbackjack,roon,serious,wind,WYSIWYG thank you for supporting me through my first steps in photography.I couldn't done it with out your precious help,in every way!

Thank you all for supporting my work all those years,i am sorry if i was hard,or a pain in the ass sometimes.I will miss you all & thank you for letting me come it to your lives,even through the net!

Finally thank you all for making me the photographer i am. Each & every one of you left a scar on me with his own way. I'll keep you all for ever in the bottom of my heart.

Until we meet again...

Dimitris Stefanis a.k.a karaflazz is out...

Sad to see this site go. I been a member since PST days late 2007. Even though I have not competed much lately I still enjoyed watching the contests.

This was a wonderful place to learn and compete.

I have met people all over the world and that was one of the things I cherished here.

Good bye to all that do not stay in touch. It has been a good run Frank and I wish you well in your future endeavours. I will always remember.

Cheers and Via Con Dias

Cabldawg71

An ending is really just a new beginning...but it still sucks.

Thank you, MrM, for providing a place where I could hone my skills.

Thank you, mods, for your patience, hard work and keeping me honest even when I got snivelly about it.

Thank you, commentators, for feeding my ego and making suggestions that almost always were right on.

And thank you, voters, for making those hard, hard decisions.

IDt8r

A ride I thought would never end..... with ups and down and twists as our work be came better.

What you the Pxl community taught me was more than I could have ever imagined and the realization of the vastness of the PS horizon.

You beat out any arrogance I might have had .and helped me build a solid piece of art.

To all of you ..you are my friends ..you are my mentors .. you are my inspiration ..driving me crazy ..driving me on ..and for that I thank you. Pxleyes was a community, with a variety of wierd neighbours, who helped each other as we brought each piece forward .. In this huge internet world I do not think we will ever find its equal.

I want to thank all you wierd neighbours for you help and your friendship, good luck in your endeavours and your life,, you may be gone ..but not forgotten, just missed.

Majkman (Aka David)

We all have always been a part of PXLeyes and Photoshoptalent, for so many years we were on it, enjoying the competition and learning new things everyday! We treated it like this and always believed it's the fact about our relationship with it! until a day has come, a day that I have always been so afraid it would come! That day has come and has horrified us all, at this specific moment we all realized that we were not a part of PXLeyes but rather that PXLeyes has been a part of each one of us! We have had all sorts of emotions and feelings with you; Goodbye PXLeyes! Many thanks to Frank for making all this available for over a decade, and for putting up with so much pressure for all of us! We will never forget.

First of all many thanks to you Frank for putting in so many energy, time and money in this community. You've created a great community and home for a lot who started with Photoshop and photography; we've learned a lot here and we tried to spread that knowledge again. New skills, techniques, inspiration, friendships and what more all because you gave us the chance to do so.

This site influenced and bettered so many lives, people met here and got married, people lost loved ones and got comfort here, people learned the basics of a trade here and got inspired to learn more, you've helped them to change their life and in some cases escape poverty.

Frank you made all of the above happen (you know that, just start realizing it as well!) and you did what so many of us never will accomplish: you helped people and to me that's the best thing anyone can do. You can be proud of yourself for creating this platform which made all of this possible.

Thank you so much for making this community possible and give us a place to learn, share and find comfort; it was awesome! But all things must end and that's not bad; it's just sad. In years to come we look back at PXL and think back with warm feelings and positive thoughts.

Furthermore thanks to all the members for entering the contests and to my fellow mods who put in countless hours to keep the contests fair: it's been a blast and you changed my life for the better.

Last but not least: so many thanks to all those people who provided all those sources for us, with them we wouldn't have had a chance to create what we created.

Robvdr

Goodbye PXL. Here I had a lot of fun and I met so many great friends who have helped me to improve my skills in photography. I'm going to miss all this awfully, will never be the same elsewhere.

A sincere thanks to everyone, it was a wonderful experience.

Patty

Yes, it is sad to know that a site like Pxleyes is ending. I would like to thank you, Mr Monty (Frank) for giving us the opportunity to learn and to feel great being here. I also appreciate the help given to me from all of you, moderators and people who helped to make Pxleyes my home for a long time. I really enjoyed being your friend in the distance and to share my learning and what I like to do in Photoshop with all of you.

I met my family here, people from around the world, who I did not even know who they were, open their arms to welcome me here at my home, away from home. The distance did not count for me, it was the feeling that I was talking to my friends in person, in every comment and suggestion they gave me, to make my work better. There is a light at the end of the tunnel, as they say, and I hope that the strenght and learning I got here, will help me to find a site like this, with some friendly people and smiling faces. You can find me on Facebook under my real name George Jimenez. Hope to see you there and continue our friendship.

Just want to thank my friends, that I will miss, and that smiled at me many times:

CMYK (Bob), Rein (Spaceranger) Cornelia Mladenova, Divair, IChapel, Tordoni, Hereisanoop, Idt8r, Drivenslush, Mqtrf, Robvdr, Lelaina, Madamemonty, Wazowsky, Solkee, (and the ones that I do not mention here, you know who you are)....Thank you guys....I hope to see you in another place, my logging name will be the same.... George55.

Love you all,

George55

Exactly 2 years and 34 days ago, I joined my first and only online photo contest, Pxleyes.com. I had no intention then of joining any photo contest, online or otherwise though I've been taking photos since the 1960s with my Brownie box camera my father bought me when I was a boy scout. I still have a few of those photos. Anyway, it was one of those Internet things that popped up saying something about 50 photos that will blow you away. I was into photo-taking on holidays, family weddings, etc, since those Brownie days and, well, it was a slow, lazy afternoon anyway and so decided to get myself blown away by some photos. So I double-clicked and saw some amazing images. I thought to myself, I wished I had taken those images. And there was a photo-contest invitation attached to it, saying just register for free, submit and win prizes; the operative words were “free” and “prizes”

I fancied myself a good photographer and thought, why not, and I am going to show these kids how good I was having taken photos for so long, even before some of these Internet kids were even borne. So I registered, submitted and nothing happened, nothing meaning that I won nothing for quite a few weeks. Something is not quite right, what’s wrong with my great images, why aren’t they winning those prizes? After weeks of frustration, I finally won one. It was the topic, “Gradient” which I knew nothing of. What on earth is a “Gradient?”, and what has it anything to do with photography? I looked through some entries and got some vague idea that it has something to do with gradual changes or shifts in shades of color. Now, I’ve never consciously taken any photos with this goal in mind, and I doubt many photographers, (except perhaps some obsessed professionals), have. So I trawled through my massive collection and found a glorious photo of a glorious sunset which, erhhh...., I’ve been wanting to show off but found no captive audience. Ahhh..., now finally a chance to show my pride and joy, never mind if it misses the Theme completely, the point was just to show it to people who have no choice but to look at it. And to my utter surprise, and private embarrassment, it won! Soon after that there was another familiar lull. Then I received a PM, (private message), from a long time member who gently suggested that though I had a good eye, my photos were “too small”, meaning small in the megabyte department. Well, they were small because I never intended to enter competitions with them, just for storage on the hard disc. I took those suggestions and encouragements to heart of course seeing that this particular member was near the top of Pxl’s heap.

And now after 2 years and 34 days and 24 firsts, 20 seconds & 22 thirds later, I now fully appreciate those kind words. Thanks a million, you know who you are.

With Pxl I now fully appreciate the good, the bad and the ugly of photography. I believe many of us will now migrate to other photo contests, but what we’ve learned and nurtured in Pxl will never be forgotten and will stand us in good stead no matter what the competition. But more than this, the cyber friendships we made in this small and close knit community of mostly hobbyists clickers are just too valuable to put into words.

So good bye Pxl, and may everyone continue to grow in all aspects of your lives, and most of all thank you for the images you’ve shared with me and me with you in these short 2 years and 34 days.

Not too long ago, a sudden, rather serious illness forced my mother into an early, unexpected retirement, robbing her of the usual transition phase and leaving no time for closure. She went into the hospital, hating to miss a day of work, and over a month later left the rehab center, never to return to work again... Understandably, it did a number on her sense of purpose and self-worth. Way too much time all of a sudden in her idle hands resurrected her dormant muses, and the itch to find a creative outlet and expressive hobby reared it’s potent head... But as it does, age had taken a toll on her hands, her stamina, her focus and memory of how to pick up some craft where she left off... Textiles...sewing, dying, embroidery, batik...always held a special joy for her. But arthritis made the hands heavy and stiff like never before; and it must have been far more frustrating and depressing than she let on... To bore is normal sometimes. To become accustomed to it is an end.

She had taken photography classes decades ago and still had the quality equipment invested in. It too had been aged into the quality obsolescence of a lost art. That a stamp sized card had become a hundred rolls worth of film, and developing, editing and chopping was instantaneous and at our fingertips...and the forgotten technical knowhow there was no reason to relearn, were foreign and intimidating. My suggestion she pick up a camera again...a lighter, simpler yet vastly more involving version, went ignored...until a site designed for contests came to light... It provided a challenge, ideas, themes, a way to learn, teach, share feedback and meet new, like minded people... It was Worth1000 that sparked her will to practice not shaking and learn what her computer could do. It was however a large, complicated and impersonal site uninviting to beginners. She taught herself the gist of how the competition played out and entered a few submissions. - Then just as she began to get comfortable, they announced they were closing, and God played one of His nasty jokes on her...

I researched other, similar sites to replace Worth, and that brought me here...where it is much cozier, friendlier and personal... She was delighted and caught on to the differences quickly. Pxleyes began to solidify a still fragile inspiration, and fill her need to be creative... She improved, and placed well at times, and that infused a pleasure back into her that would seem impossible from such a simple thing...and I cannot thank all of you enough for that. You've no idea how important the inspiration you've created and offer is to some people, and I cannot let it be missed again... You've planted a seed that now must get watered elsewhere and that's a beautiful thing.

My mom is darann... We joined about the same time, and understanding the difficulties of having family or friends both competing and judging each other, we decided to keep the relationship quiet and be as honestly objective as possible. She just got released from a serious six week hospital stay and has been absent during that time...but asking about new contests, who was winning, with pictures of what, was probably the best distraction she had. She missed it dearly...and got home a couple days after the announcement was made. I hated telling her...and it makes me angry at the world and circumstances and unfairly at people who I'm really most grateful for. You who've taken the time and energy to give this to us freely, I know to have been a blessing in at least two lives, and we'll never forget our time spent in Pxl-mode... May your next venture be even half as rewarding, as that would be more than what most ever achieve.

Luck, pos vibes, the very best...smooth seas and clear roads to you all...

Awediot / Dean Botteron

A very sad moment, but first, Frank, thank you so much for the enormous job you have done in creating and keeping this site running. As enjoyable as it has been I bet it has also been a large headache.

Being on this site for quite a few years, has enriched my life, it has inspired me, taught me a lot and I have made some very good friends. The friends I will keep, and my love of photography, but how I will miss to get up in the mornings, make my coffee and turn my computer on, to see what new on the site.

Perhaps my house will be cleaner and my garden weed free, but I will be very sad to lose this part of my daily routine.

All the very best to you Frank, I hope you will find an other wonderful project.

THANKS TO YOU ALL

for setting up this site, for the timeless hours of moderating, for making thousands of entries, for making contest suggestions, for competing in the 1 vs 1's, for taking the time to vote, for taking time to comment, for taking time to put in red flags, for helping out other members, for teaching, for learning and improving yourself, for making SBS's, for putting down those sources, for writing tutorials, for taking part in 'PXL on tour', for helping out making 'the Eye', for being friends, for your inspiration, for your encouragement, for your input in discussions on our forum, for giving others a 'WOW' moment with your amazing entries, but most of all for being you and for giving the best!

Pxl is gone but it will remain in our hearts, take what you've learned here and spread your knowledge to others. That would be the biggest gift we can take from the end of this era...
